/* Ellipse 1 */
position: absolute;
width: 100px;
height: 100px;
left: 85px;
top: 258px;
background: #2E8C64;

Below the code, there's a 'Fill' section with three entries:

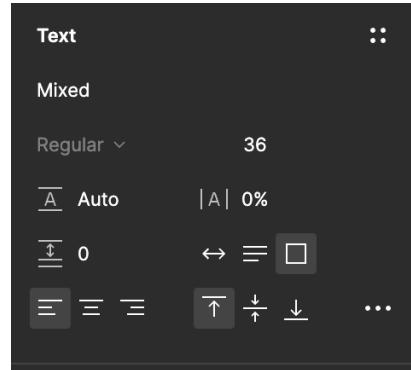

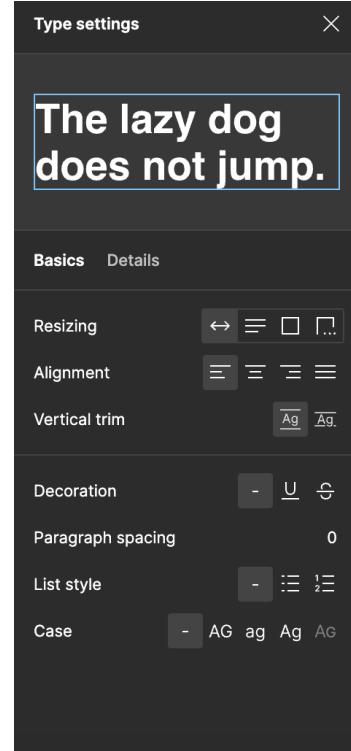

Color	Value	Opacity	Visibility
FF0202	20%	20%	Visible
Linear	100%	100%	Visible
2E8C64	100%	100%	Visible
